TURKEYS DROP

Off Two Cents Since Last Week.

Peter Fox & Sons are doubling their poultry business of last year and expect to handle $85,000 worth of fowls for the season up to January 1st. They are this season receiving poultry in carload lots from all surrounding territory, over all roads, and shipping only dressed fowls out of Hopkinsville to the northern and eastern markets. Last year the turkey crop was small and prices ran as high as 17 cents. This year the market opened at 12 cents and on Monday morning the price was lowered to 11 cents and by Wednesday was off another cent and turkeys were still plentiful at 10 cents. Frank Fox, who has been in charge of the office here several years, is accompanied this year by another of the brothers, Will Fox. Both have been kept busy day and night.

BLUE RIBBON FLOUR

HAMLETT BANQUET

A Brilliant And Highly Successful Affair Thursday Evening.

LASTED UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK.

Able Array of After Dinner Speakers and Wit and Good Feeling Prevailed.

Hopkinsville, noted for its brilliant banquets, has seldom had a more successful affair of the kind in every way than was the "going away dinner" to Superintendent elect Barksdale Hamlett at Hotel Latham Thursday evening from 8:30 to 1 o'clock.

The tables were arranged in the large dining room at the hotel with the speakers table across the east end and two rows of tables extending the full length of the room allowing plenty of room between them. Covers were laid for 80 and most of the seats were occupied.

The menu was an elegant course dinner, served under the personal direction of Col. W. A. Wilgus, the Chairman of the committee having the affair in hand. It passed off without a hitch and the tables were cleared for the speeches at 10:45, while the guests got into comfortable attitudes and lighted their cigars. Judge W. T. Fowler, a political adversary but a close personal friend of Prof. Hamlett, was toastmaster and was at his best as a graceful, witty and thoroughly-at-ease presiding genius.

Without much interference with the scheduled ten minutes' limit, the following speakers occupied the floor:

Buffets and Rewards..... Ira L. Smith Brief Chronicles H. A. Long Weighing Delight and Dole.....

T. C. Underwood On Fortune's Cap..... John C. Duffy Very Like a Whale..... C. R. Clark In the Mind's Eye..... J. T. Hanberry In Antic Disposition C. M. Meacham

As the clock tolled the knell of the dying day, the last speaker closed his remarks and gave way to the guest of honor, who spoke to the subject "To Be or Not To Be."

With no limit on his time, Mr. Hamlett opened his heart freely to his friends and told of his struggles from poverty, the dreams of his youth, his fond ambitions and the final realization of his hopes. He thanked his friends of all parties, praised the school board, the Council and the people for the progressive spirit ever manifested in educational affairs and said the credit of Hopkinsville's fine schools was due to the people and not to him or any one man.

He spoke a pathetic farewell to his friends and pledged his best efforts in the high office to which he had been elected.

HOLD-UP BY BOLD HOBO

John Griffith Robbed In Qualls' Grocery On Wednesday Evening.

GOOD WORK BY THE POLICE.

The Thief Pulled From a Moving Train and Behind Bars In 20 Minutes.

A young man who says his name is William Gladstone entered the grocery store of W. P. Qualls, on Sixth St., Wednesday at 6 o'clock p.m., and found one of the clerks, John Griffith, alone. He bought a box of matches and handed Mr. Griffith $1. Mr. Griffith went to the cash register and when he turned round with the change the stranger covered him with a pistol and with his left hand took out about $14 in cash from the register and forced Mr. Griffith to give up his own coin purse containing a few dollars, but overlooked another purse containing more than $50 in currency. He then backed to the door, making Mr. Griffith go with him, and reaching the door, ordered the salesman back into the store and took to his heels through an alley and headed towards Fourth street.

Gladstone quickly reported the matter and the police took energetic action. Officers Wolfe and Barnett took up the trail and soon met E. G. Lamb, col., who said he had met the man running towards the railroad. A freight train was taking water at Third street and the officers arrived just in time to catch the robber crouched on the bumpers as the train began to move and forcibly jerked him from the moving train, the trio falling in a pile just out of the way of the wheels. Before they could get up, Officer Jones ran up from the sub-station, and the man was held and disarmed of an ugly gun. In the meantime Lieut. Hawkins had gone in the buggy to Latham to head off the train when it stopped there. The robber gave the name of Wm Gladstone and said he was a common hobo, but he was well dressed and really a nice looking young man. He is believed to be a regular hold-up man. On his person was found $23 and Mr. Griffith recovered the money taken from him. Gladstone was locked up till Thursday and then turned over to the county jailer to await action by the grand jury.

His capture was a fine piece of police work and the vigilant and intrepid officers who made the arrest are being highly praised by the business men of the city.

Gladstone is apparently about 20 years old and claims that it is his first offense of the kind. He says his home is in Bracken County, Ky.

CHRISTIAN IN FIRST

If Proposed Redistricting Bill Goes Through.

Frankfort, Dec. 20.—If the changes recommended by the special committee appointed by the legislature to prepare a redistricting bill are endorsed, there will be very radical changes in judicial and congressional districts.

The changes recommended in the congressional districts are as follows:

Christian taken from the Second and put into the First; Ohio taken from the Fourth and put into the Second;

Butler taken from Third and put into Fourth; Adair taken from Eleventh and put into Fourth; Hart and Green taken out of Fourth and put into the Third; Casey taken out of Eleventh and put into Eighth; Clark taken out of Tenth and put into Eighth; Trimble, Carroll and Gallatin taken out of Sixth and put into Seventh; Montgomery, Menifee, Morgan and Elliott taken out of Tenth and put into Ninth; Perry, Owings, Jackson and Leiper taken out of Eleventh and put into Tenth.

Two districts only are changed in the Appellate districts. Webster and Union counties are taken out of the First and put into the Second district; Clark, Powell, Estill and Lee counties are taken out of the Seventh and put into the First.

Changes in nearly every congressional district in the state are now intended to the legislator in a bill which will be made up by the special committee appointed by the last legislature to prepare fair redistricting bill. The changes proposed by the committee will make the Tenth district Republican, as well as the Eleventh, but will leave the other districts with a reasonably safe Democratic majority with a normal vote cast. The committee completed its work as to congressional, appellate and judicial districts

Bullheaded Jury.

Clarksville, Tenn., Dec. 19.—Again disregarding the charge of Judge Tyler, the jury in the case of Malcolm Mimms, accused of burglary and arson, reported the same verdict yesterday afternoon which the judge refused to accept as the verdict. In its verdict the jury fixed the punishment of the defendant at eleven months and twenty-nine days in the work-house, whereas the law relative to arson, which the judge read to the jury, prescribes that the punishment for the offense shall not be less than five years nor more than twenty-one years in the penitentiary.

After a severe reprimand Judge Tyler set aside the verdict, dismissed the jury for this term and ordered the prisoner to jail with a verdict of guilty and a bond of $2,000, and two more cases to be tried.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 20.—More sample rooms, a sufficient number of fire escapes, proper sanitation, back kitchens, elimination of the fleas, and sheets nine feet in length are the recommendations of the State board of the Kentucky division of the Travelers' Protective Association to the State Legislature.

The recommendations will be included in a bill that will be drafted in Louisville December 20, and presented to the Legislature at the next meeting. A special committee consisting of W. O. Doherty, of Hopkinsville, state president; Carl H. Finek of Louisville, chairman of the State Board, and Dr. Ben L. Bruce, chairman of the Legislative Committee, was appointed to draft the bill.

WHY THE CHIMES RANG

By RAYMOND MACDONALD ALDEN
ILLUSTRATIONS BY MAYO BUNKER

HERE was once, in a far-away country, a wonderful church. It stood on a high hill in the midst of a great city; and every Sunday, as well as on sacred days like Christmas, thousands of people climbed the hill to its great archways, looking like lines of ants all moving in the same direction.

At one corner of the church was a great gray tower, with ivy growing over it as far up as one could see. I say as far as one could see, because the tower was quite great enough to fit the great church, and it rose so far into the sky that it was only in very fair weather that any one claimed to be able to see the top.

Now all the people knew that at the top of the tower was a chime of Christmas bells. They had hung there ever since the church had been built, and were the most beautiful bells in the world. Some thought it was because a great musician had cast them and arranged them in their place; others said it was because of the great height, which reached up where the air was clearest and purest; however that might be, no one who had ever heard the chiming denied that they were the sweetest in the world. Some described them as sounding like angels far up in the sky; others, as sounding like strange winds singing through the trees.

But the fact was that no one had heard them for years and years. They were Christmas chiming, you see, and were not meant to be played by men or on common days. It was the custom on Christmas Eve for all the people to bring to the church their offerings to the Christ-child; and when the greatest and best offering was laid on the altar, there used to come sounding through the music of the choir the Christmas chiming far up in the tower. But for many long years they had never been heard. It was said that people had been growing less careful of their gifts for the Christ-child, and that no offering was brought, great enough to deserve the music of the chiming.

Every Christmas Eve the rich people still crowded to the altar, each one trying to bring some better gift than any other, without giving anything that he wanted for himself, and the church was crowded with those who thought that perhaps the wonderful bells might be heard again. But although the service was splendid, and the offerings plenty, only the roar of the wind could be heard, far up in the stone tower.

Now, a number of miles from the city, in a little country village, where nothing could be seen of the great church but glimpses of the tower when the weather was fine, lived a boy named Pedro, and his little brother. They knew very little about the Christmas chiming, but they had heard of the service in the church on Christmas Eve, and had a secret plan, which they had often talked over when by themselves, to go to see the beautiful celebration.

"Nobody can guess, Little Brother," Pedro would say, "all the fine things there are to see and hear; and I have even heard it said that the Christ-child sometimes comes down to bless the service. What if we could see him?"

The day before Christmas was bitterly cold, with a few lonely snowflakes flying in the air, and a hard white crust on the ground. Sure enough, Pedro and Little Brother were able to slip quietly away early in the afternoon; and although the walking was hard in the frosty air, before nightfall they had trudged so far, hand in hand, that they saw the lights of the big city just ahead of them. Indeed, they were about to enter one of the great gates in the wall that surrounded it, when they saw something dark on the snow near their path, and stopped to look at it.

It was a poor woman, who had fallen just outside the city, too sick and tired to get in where she might have found shelter. The soft snow made of a drift a sort of pillow for her, and she would soon be so sound asleep, in the wintry air, that no one could ever waken her again. All this Pedro saw in a moment, and he knelt down beside her and tried to rouse her, even tugging at her arm a little, as though he would have tried to carry her away. He turned her face toward him, so that he could rub some snow on it, and when he had looked at her silently a moment he stood up and said:

"It's no use, Little Brother. You will have to go on alone."

"Alone!" cried Little Brother. "And you not see the Christmas festival?"

"No," said Pedro, and he could not keep back a bit of a choking sound in his throat. "See this poor woman. Her face looks like the Madonna in the chapel window, and she will freeze to death if nobody cares for her. Every one has gone to church now, but when you come back you can bring some one to help her. I will rub her to keep her from freezing, and perhaps get her to eat the bun that is left in my pocket."

"But I cannot bear to leave you, and go on alone," said Little Brother.

"Both of us need not miss the service," said Pedro, "and it had better be I than you; and oh! if you get a chance, Little Brother, to slip up to the altar without getting in any one's way, take this little piece of silver of mine, and lay it down for my offering, when no one is looking. Do not forget where you have left me, and forgive me for not going with you."

In this way he hurried Little Brother off to the city, and winked hard to keep back the tears, as he heard the crunching foot-steps sounding farther and farther away in the twilight. It was pretty hard to lose the Christmas celebration that he had been planning for so long, and spend the time instead in that lonely place in the snow. The great church was a wonderful place that night. Every one said that it had never looked so bright and beautiful before. When the organ played and the thousands of people sang the walls shook with the sound, and little Pedro, away outside the city wall, felt the earth tremble around him.

At the close of the service came the procession with the offerings to be laid on the altar. Rich men and great men marched proudly up to lay down their gifts to the Christ-child. Some brought wonderful jewels, some bags of gold so heavy that they could scarcely carry them down the aisle. A great writer brought his book, and last of all walked the king of the country, hoping with all the rest to win for himself the chime of the Christmas bells. There went a great murmur through the church, as the people saw the king take from his head the royal crown, all set with precious stones, and lay it gleaming on the altar, as his offering to the holy Child. "Surely," every one said, "we shall hear the bells now, for nothing like this has ever happened before."

But still only the cold wind was heard in the tower, and the people shook their heads; and some of them said, as they had before, that they never really believed the story of the chiming, and doubted if they ever rang at all.

The procession was over, and the choir began the closing hymn. Suddenly the organist stopped playing as though he had been shot, and every one looked at the old minister, who was standing by the altar, holding up his hand for silence. Not a sound could be heard from anyone in the church, but as the people strained their ears to listen, there came softly, but distinctly, swinging through the air, the sound of the chiming in the tower. So far away, and yet so clear the music seemed—so much sweeter were the notes than anything that had been heard before, rising and falling away up there in the sky, that the people in the church sat for a moment as still as though something held each of them by the shoulders. Then they all stood up together and stared straight at the altar, to see what great gift had awakened the long silent bells.

But all that the nearest of them saw was the childlike figure of Little Brother, who had crept softly down the aisle when no one was looking, and had laid Pedro's little piece of silver on the altar.

Behind the Gift

By Barbara Lee

MERRY Christmas!

You're welcome!

How have you enjoyed the first few hours today? Hasn't it been exciting and interesting! Now that the first little calm has come after the storm, let us settle back to look once again at gifts that are our special fortune to own in the great living room. There's father's gift. Can't you see dear old dad behind every page of your favorite set of books? All cut, too, and illustrated by the only artist that appeals to you. What riches lie in the palm of your hand as you look! No one can rob you of these. Every page means the door of a new treasure house. How good of dear father! I wonder how he knew? He must have been listening when you and your chum had that rippling discussion of favorites. And you can't understand how he knew the color of your collection. Ah, well! Trust a father.

Mother's dressing gown. She made it unhelped and probably in the late night hours after the very long day. See how cleverly her fingers have made three yards of cord look like much more. The loops and buttons are handmade; they cost so much less, and you know mother hasn't a bank account of her own. She has not cut down the rations, either. It's just her great, generous heart that has accomplished the seemingly impossible thing. The eyes are not so bright and blue as when she was the happy, laughing girl that dad first loved. But she sees just as far beneath the surface, and she knows how much you long for some things. Ah, what a world of sacrifice and love stands behind these gifts.

Oh, my! Don't smile, but isn't this just like that great, blundering cub of Bob? He must have paid five or six dollars for this. Poor, misguided, astute brother! Now you can just see him sauntering into the "art (save the mark!) needlework" store. Do you see his airy nonchalance as he casts his eye over the pluchions arrayed in glistening, aching lines? How much is this? And this? The latter being the more expensive, was quickly chosen. Oh, what ever are you going to do with it? Bright pink satin, with a suggestive bunch of bright forget-me-nots blooming out from beneath a ruffle of very cheap lace. You'll never forget it. You know—the kind of things you see at fairs. It may be the reason! Perhaps the fair is an institution for helping hopeless pin-cushions along an easy way.

But that's Bob for you! Care free, big hearted, a little rough on the aesthetic edges, but ever willing to give you the best. Put back the abomination of satin and sawdust. Don't hurt his feelings, please. Thank him for his thought, his generosity. You can do this without being a hypocrite. Here's something that hurts. Why? Oh, because it has been given to "get ahead" of you. She has money and has bought the most expensive of its kind and has forgotten to remove the price! She really should not have done this, for she isn't one of your inner circle and she doesn't care for you. Money stands back of this. Nothing more than the dollar mark lies beneath the lid. You know it, and a blush mounts to your cheeks when you think of the few remarks that you heard the giver make about you at Laura's tea. Why do people do these things?

Here's a queer one. Lift up the box lid again. It's an old shoe box, but some loving hands have covered it with two paper napkins and—look at the contents! A loaf of the finest Dutch cake you ever tasted. Dear Bridget never forgets you, does she? In her little four-roomed cottage, where she's very happy and very busy, she always bakes the bread that you relish and sends her awkward husband up with her best wishes every Christmas day in the morning. What that cake means only you and she can tell.

Let us look again at the little card before you. What did that? A tear falls on the colored church, with its bright roof and another splashes on the snow that is piled with childish prodigality at the roadside. A little boy has drawn that all for you. He calls you "Dear One," and once he told his mother that he felt sure that angels look like you, but she corrected him, as if a child could be stopped in harmless wonderings, and he never again ventured along lines of comparison. Poor little boy! You know what that card means! It means day and days of work. It means the gratitude of a crippled child who can't use a finger without pain. And he has drawn this for you!

Oh, my, isn't this funny! That clown of a Jack is up to his tricks again. He has bought a book for 49 cents and has inked it with his foolish hand, adding, "Reduced to $1.08." And to pile Ossie on Peltion, he has been additionally frank in suggesting that it's "treasure." That man can always get a smile from you!

There, you've dropped something! Don't lose that. It's a letter. Are you going to read it again? Why, you know every word in it!

"Dearest," it says, "I send you my heart, my soul, my life's best thoughts and actions. Will you keep them? Ah, no need to tell you what stands behind the note. You know, don't you? That's why it has been a very happy Christmas!

CHRISTMAS THE CHILD'S DAY

By Rev. Bradford Leavitt

Christmas is the child's day in the Christian year, and how this weary and uneasy world needs the child-like mind to save it from itself. What is more subtly fitted to the needs of a worn and dissipated world than the image of all that is alive and fresh and unstained? It is the child in men we look for and love—again today the child is the savior that answers a smile with a smile, that responds to the confidence with confidence, ready to take you and me for what we would like to be and thus lifts us nearly to our ideal.

I have admired wit in men and influence and grace and beauty in women and I find also that one disturbs these, grows indifferent to them as he gets older and sadder and wiser, but loves in men and women the little child, longs for some one not to admire nor praise nor be charmed by, but some one to love so that loving shall be peace.

Our Gifts

As the Magi came bearing gifts, so do we also—gifts that relieve want; gifts that are sweet and fragrant with friendship; gifts that breathe love; gifts that mean service; gifts inspired still by the star which shone over the City of David, nearly two thousand years ago.—Kate Douglas Wiggin.

The Spirit Will

By Willard D. Nesbit

Jesus of Nazareth... who went about doing good

Some are an-hungry, some athirst,
Some are borne down with heavy woe,
Some are of sin and shame accursed,
But in the Eve-star's heaven-glow
All are befriended, each has heard
Messages that bid him rejoice.
We are the ones that speak the Word—
Brother, my brother, it is His voice.

We go a-shuddering to the door
Sorrowing over all the want,
Giving the gifts brought of our store
Into the hands by pain made gaunt
Nay, 'tis not ours that find the way
Into the dark and noisome street,
Bringing the cheer of Christmas day—
Brother, my brother, it is His feet.

Child lips to laughter alien-strange
Show us a miracle in this while,
When over them there comes a change—
When for the once they know a smile.
Baubles we bring are jewels fair
Found in the distant wonderlands.—
Think you 'tis we who bring them there?
Brother, my brother, it is His hands.

Pulsing to us through the centuries
Murmurs forever in one deep key,
"As ye have done it to one of these
So have ye done it unto Me."
Give as we can, and gladly, too—
Out of the soul does the impulse start,
What is the throbbing in me and you?
Brother, my brother, it is His heart.

ON EARLY CHRISTMAS DAY

Quaint and Interesting Customs That Prevailed When the Church and Festival Were Young.

In the early days of the church, it is said that the bishops used to sing carols on Christmas day among their clergy, and around the sixteenth century the well-known practice observed by children of going along the neighborhood singing Christmas carols beneath the windows of the houses, was commonly observed, usually taking pence on Christmas morning. One of the oldest and most beautiful of the Christmas carols that has come down to the present day open with these words:

"God rest you, merry gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay,
For Jesus Christ, our Savior,
Was born upon this day,
To save us all from Satan's power,
When we were gone astray,
O, tidings of comfort and joy!
For Jesus Christ, our Savior,
Was born on Christmas Day."

It is sometimes more appropriate to sing the Christmas carols on Christmas eve than on Christmas day, although they are sung at both times; but in England the choir of the village church used to go around to the principal houses in the parish and sing some of these simple hymns on Christmas eve regularly.

Frequently the singers were accompanied on some instrument and often the picture presented was a pretty one. The figures of the group of singers, only visible in the darkness by the lanterns they carried, and the sweet melody sung and played, made the observance a striking and beautiful one.

Sometimes in England, the carols were also sung in the churches in place of the usual psalms and hymns; although it was more customary for the clerk, at the close of the service in a loud voice to wish all the congregation a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

An amusing story of how Santa Claus frightened the black children at a mission station when he first appeared to them few years ago, is told by the wife of a missionary stationed at Ballunda, Africa. They had celebrated Christmas at Ballunda before, but they never had had Santa Claus, so Mr. Stover, the missionary, dressed up as good Saint Nick.

"He had been padded and powdered and packed until his own mother would not have known him," Mrs. Stover afterward related. "Presently we gave the signal, the door flew open and in walked Santa Claus. But dear me! What consternation! He was greeted with shrieks and groans and cries of 'Let me out!' It is the day of judgment!"

"The urchins, catching the infection of terror from the older black people, fled to their bedrooms, fell down upon their faces, crept under chairs and tables—anywhere to hide themselves. Poor old Santa Claus never had such a greeting before. As soon as he realized the panic he had caused, he tore off his tall bat and white cotton beard. Then from the bags on his back he began to throw gifts right and left to tell who he was.

"Reassured once more, everyone was soon laughing and chatting, munching the great 'red breads' (doughnuts), testing their fruits or nibbling at the sweets from the familiar little bags.

"It seemed as though everyone tried to talk louder than his neighbor as they examined the costume of Santa Claus, whom they now no longer feared. One man said that he thought it was John the Baptist, another that it was Elijah returned. Yet another thought it was Satan himself, and all my sins rose up before me; while a fourth confessed 'My only thought was to hide my self.'

The property will be converted into a place for holding religious assemblies, chautauquas, Bible conferences and other meetings of similar character, besides the regular summer resort business.

No More Tips.

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Today President P. E. Dow, of the Commercial Travelers' National league, sent out a warning to all hotels included in the territory of his followers, that after January 1 the rule of members of the league will be "no tips."

This action is the outcome of a resolution recently passed by the Hotel Employes' association declaring in favor of adequate wages in preference to tips.

High Water Marks.

New York, Dec. 22.—Butter and eggs are selling in New York at the highest prices received for over ten years. Dealers and warehousemen point to the prices as a justification of the cold storage system, contending that the threatened legislation affecting cold storage is one of the principal causes for the high prices.

Eggs are selling wholesale at 44 to 50 cents a dozen, and butter at 38 to 40 cents. Retail prices of eggs range from 48 to 75 cents and butter is sold from 40 to 50 cents.

CLEVER DEVICE TO DIVERT GAS FLOW

Louisville is Charged With Employing One to Prevent Registration of Fluid.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 22.—For the first time in the history of local courts, perhaps, the attention of justice has been directed toward a woman charged with the unusual offense of "putting it over" on a gas meter. The woman is Stella Smith, and she owns a house on West Green street, and she is charged with grand larceny.

Her particular offense, it is alleged, is the nullification of the records of a gas meter in her home by the use of a clever device which diverts the gas flow so that only about 10 percent of the gas used is registered in the meter. Supt. L. L. Cadwallader, for the gas company, testified that the woman had had the device in use for two years. He was not sure how much gas she had taken, he said.

The Smith woman was held to answer to the grand jury, her bond being fixed at $100.

Educational Feature.

"The Awakening of John Bond" was the chief feature at the Princess yesterday. It is a graphic and truthful portrayal of the dangers of tuberculosis and of the personal responsibility of each one for existing conditions.

It should be shown, again and again, in every town in the land. The Journal of the American Medical Association requests that all physicians and all members of charitable societies ask to have this film shown to the public. It is by far the best of a number of public health films turned out by the Edison company, which is fully justified in its announcement that it has been able not only to produce a film of high dramatic value, but also of great educational benefit."

What It Costs.

Persons desiring to commit any of the major crimes in Kansas City, Kan., may now estimate the cost in advance. Today a framed list of the commoner crimes and the penalties therefor was posted in the office of the Chief of Police of that city. The list follows:

Letting a goat run in a public place, $5.

Throwing chewing gum on sidewalks or in street cars, $5.

Stealing a gate, $10.

Pulling pickets off a fence, $5.

Having a pig pen on the place $25.

Talking "sassy" to women in stores and other public places, $25.

Porters talking in rude or ungentlemanly manner, $10.

Kissing in parks, $10.

Allowing chickens in neighbor's garden, $5.

Carrying a "bean shooter," $10.

Exonerated and Elected.

The Board of Control of the Charitable Institutions held a meeting in Lexington and heard all the charges made against Dr. C. A. Nevitt, the acting superintendent of the Lexington Asylum, and after exonerating him from all blame, he was elected as superintendent to succeed Dr. R. L. Willis, who was removed sometime ago by the Board.

Threatening Letter.

The neighborhood northeast of Mayfield has been aroused by a "Night Rider" letter received by A. O. Green, a farmer. Green in a letter threatened with rough treatment if he fails to leave the community.

Dread of an Operation.

N. Manchester, Ind.—Mrs. Eva Besore, of this place, says, "I suffered female misery of every description. Two doctors attended me, and advised an operation. I lost weight until I weighed only ninety pounds. I dreaded an operation, and, instead, began to take Cardui. In a short time, I gained 25 pounds, and feel as well as I ever did. Cardui, I am sure, saved my life." Cardui is today used in thousands of homes, where it relieves pain and brings back strength and ambition. It is a women's medicine, for women's ailments, and you are urged to try it for your troubles. Ask your druggist. He will tell you about Cardui.

Her particular offense, it is alleged, is the nullification of the records of a gas meter in her home by the use of a clever device which diverts the gas flow so that only about 10 percent of the gas used is registered in the meter.

Supt. L. L. Cadwallader, for the gas company, testified that the woman had had the device in use for two years. He was not sure how much gas she had taken, he said.

The Smith woman was held to answer to the grand jury, her bond being fixed at $100.

Here To Compromise.

Whittinghill, state revenue agent, who has brought many tax suits against property owners of Christian county, held audiences in the Clerk's office, two days this week and many people called to see him about the threatened suits. Some parties sued compromised with him for small amounts. No records are accessible to indicate the extent of his operations.

IN CASE OF THOMPSON

Efforts Made to Establish an Alibi for Alleged Patri-cide.

SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY.

Motion Made by Defense That the Jury Be Allowed to View It.

Madisonville, Ky., Dec. 21.—The general opinion as to the outcome of the trial of Thomas Thompson is that the boy will be acquitted. The defense closed at 5 o'clock this afternoon, and the prosecution put a few witnesses on in rebuttal at the night session. Argument will begin the first thing Friday morning and the jury should receive the case by noon Friday. This may be upset if Judge Henson passes favorably on the motion by the prosecution, which provides for the jury viewing the scene of the tragedy. The defense agreed to the motion, but what action the judge will take on it is not known. Attorneys for the defense believe he will pass on it unfavorably.

The morning session was taken up in efforts on the part of the defense to establish an alibi for young Thompson. Stronger evidence was introduced for this purpose than at the first trial. Witnesses were placed on the stand to contradict Henry Brown, who declared that he met them while on his way to the cemetery.

The 19-year-old boy is accused of murdering his father, Henry Thompson, a wealthy merchant, in a ravine on the day following last Christmas. The case has been attended by the greatest mystery.

THE MAGAZINES

The January Wide World Magazine.

An interesting and inspiring article appears in the January WIDE WORLD MAGAZINE entitled "The Guardian of the Light." This is a description of Madame Mateot's heroism on the night of April 18th last when her husband, the keeper of the Kerdonis Lighthouse, at Belle-Ile-en Mer, lay dead and she and her children spent the whole of the night turning the machinery which keeps the Kerdonis light in movement. Other articles include an exciting one on "Sharking" by D. W. O. Fagan; "The Ascent of Iztaccihuatl;" "The Rain Gods of Mardi;" "Among the Chinese Shans," "A Journalist in Alaska" and "Our Hunting Trip in Chu-but." The number is lavishly illustrated with photographs taken in all parts of the world.

Queen Mary's Christmas Pudding.

In the January STRAND MAGAZINE appears the receipt for the Christmas plum pudding which is compounded in the huge kitchens at Windsor Castle. Here it is: 1½ pounds suet (finely shredded), 1 pound Demerara sugar, 1 pound small raisins, 1 pound plums (stoned and cut in half), 4 ounces citron (cut into thin slices), 4 ounces candied peel (cut into thin slices), teaspoonful of mixed spices, half a grated nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of salt, 1 pound of bread crumbs, ½ pound of sifted flour, 1 pound of eggs (weighed in their shells), wine glass of brandy. Beat the eggs to a froth and then add to them half a pint new milk and mix the various ingredients. Let the mixture stand for twelve hours in a cool place. Then place in moulds and boil for eight hours. The above would make three ordinary-sized puddings.

The January Woman's Home Companion.

The January Woman's Home Companion contains a mass of good reading and practical suggestions. Among the special articles worthy of particular notice are the following: "The Girlhood of Three Famous Prima Donnas;" "Turning the Leaf," an inspiring New Year's sermon by Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle in New York City; "Is the American Man a Failure?"—a most illuminating presentation of an important subject; "Adventures in Economy," being the story of a woman of fifty, suddenly deposed from a life of luxury and compelled to earn a living for her family.

Salt Sold By Postmasters.

At Bevieux (Old Bex), Among the Alps, the railroad passes the rock-salt mines, from which the Swiss government procures most of the salt whose sale is a government monopoly and often sold only by the local postmaster, who deals not only in stamps, but in salt. At this point a toothed rail is brought into play, and the gradient rapidly increases, as the cars pass through woods of walnuts and chestnuts, here an important item of the diet and income of their owners—"Swiss Mountain Climbing," National Magazine for December.

How Parchment Got Its Name.

The Greeks of Pergamus are said to have first prepared parchment from the skins of the goat or sheep. They were curried, deprived of all fat, thinned uniformly by the knife dyed, or whitened, and finally rubbed down with pumice stone to a smooth and even surface. Called pergamenum from the city of its origin, the new material became parchment in archaic French and "parchment" in the English tongue—Charles Winslow Hall, in National Magazine for December.

Scientific Method.

An unusual method of jail-breaking was successfully adopted by which four prisoners in the Lawrence county jail are still at large.

The prisoners cracked a stone in the prison wall by alternating heat and cold. They heated the stone by means of a gas stove they had rigged up for that purpose, and when it had become sufficiently hot they dashed cold water on it. This caused it to split in two.

tion of Students in the Flowery Kingdom.George Washington and Napoleon are the two greatest heroes of western history to the Chinese schoolboy and young college man. Washington and the cherry tree have a place in most of the early school readers in the modern government school. His filial piety and his position as father of his country make a very strong appeal.Napoleon appeals most strongly to the more fiery of the youth in the colleges, the Cantonese and warm-blooded southerners. They see in Napoleon the fire and force they would have in a leader of their own to free the land from its corrupt government. These college boys' minds are full of the French revolution, and among the most extreme there is a feeling that only in a similar way can their own people be freed.
The inflammable, whirlwind nature nature of the French has its counterpart in this type of excitable Chinese mind of the south."But we can obtain constitutional government through the parliament by peaceful means and gradually," said one class to an extremist in Pekin recently. "Did not Confucius teach moderation in the doctrine of the mean?""Yes, he did," answered the Cantonese admirer of the French revolution, "but Confucius himself if he were here now would see that fighting will be necessary."HARD ON HIMThe Poet—Here's a poem of mine, drift of it.WALNUT LOG BURIED DEEP.A walnut log in a fine state of preservation was found 350 feet under the surface of the ground on a farm in McPherson county. C. W.

Bachelor, a farmer, was drilling a well when the log was encountered.
The tree, more than a foot in diameter, is supposed to have grown on the banks of the big sea or lake that once covered central Kansas.The only part of this lake remaining is the basin west of McPherson.
The tree had not become fossilized but was just as natural wood as though it had fallen yesterday. It must have taken thousands of years, local scientists say, for the 350 feet of soil, sand and shale to accumulate above the log.—McPherson Correspondence Topeka Capital.AN "O. HENRY" TRAIT."O. Henry's" tolerance of another's shortcomings was one of his most human qualities. A college student who posed for a time as author of "O. Henry's" work wrote to him expressing his remorse, says the New York Post. The impostor said that he had begun it as a joke and finally was unable to extricate himself. The reply was as follows: "Of course, I know it was only a prank. Come down to New York some time and we'll do the town together. It was generous of you to stand for some of that stuff."AGAIN POSTPONED.Shem, having been rebuffed several times, had become decidedly impatient."Father," he said, "why under the sun can't we leave the ark now? The water has subsided!""Wet grounds," laconically answered Noah.NOT SERIOUS."Was young Sappleigh seriously hurt when he was thrown out of his automobile?""No, he struck on his head. Of course his injury was painful, but it could not, in the nature of things, have been serious."BLOCK GAS MANTLESMOS

ORPHANS' HOME

Details Have Been Arranged
For Starting.

To interested enquirers kindly grant me space to say through the medium of your columns that the recently organized West Ky., Orphans' Home is not dead nor slumbering, and while its manager has been saying little he has not been idle. With him it has been an instance of "sawing wood and saying nothing." Preparatory to active work many details have had to be attended to. These were all necessary and called for the expenditure of time and money, for both of which the manager has drawn upon his own resources.

Articles of incorporation went into effect December 1st. The Manager has during the month sent circular letters to the officials of every county in the Western end of the state. Everything is in readiness now to receive as charges unfortunate little ones upon whom affliction or the hand of cruel fate may be laid heavily.

Financial aid is not yet solicited, but the co-operation of your readers in promptly calling attention to needy, dependent cases will greatly aid the cause and is sincerely desired. Let each reader feel personally addressed, and if there is within your knowledge a dependent child consider that you may bring into its heart Christmas cheer in thus aiding it to reach the Home.

I am in this work to stay and to win. My heart is in it, and were my power commensurate with my interest and zeal not one child would long remain friendless and dependent upon public charity. But in the performance of the task which I alone cannot accomplish, I look with trusting faith and cheerful hope to the aid of other hearts and hands as ready and as willing as are my own. With many, if not all, when the proper time shall come when the burden shall become too great for one unaided to bear, I trust that I shall then be fully justified in subscribing myself.

In a righteous cause your fellow-laborer,

Drawbacks of Matrimony

"This getting married," remarked young Mrs. Allison, isn't all that it's talked up to be!" She picked up her embroidery and resumed operations on a large blue butterfly.

The other embroiderers looked shocked, with the exception of the fluffy haired blonde, who giggled appreciatively. "Is Fred developing dyspepsia?" she inquired with mirthful solicitude. "My dear!" cried young Mrs. Allison, with wide-eyed protest. "Fred can eat anything, I'm happy to say. I ran completely out of ideas about meals day before yesterday, so I had fried soles for dinner, to break the monotony of steak and chops and roast and chops and roast and steak, and roast and steak."

"That will do!" sternly interrupted the young matron with auburn hair. "That way lies madness. Some of us are housekeepers ourselves, you may remember."

"And," went on young Mrs. Allison, meekly, "Fred ate his sole with positive enjoyment, though I couldn't even bend my own. No, Fred is not dyspeptic."

"Well, then," said the fluffy haired blonde, "he must be getting the club habit."

"Wrong!" said young Mrs. Allison promptly. "Fred doesn't belong to a single club except the Beethoven. He hates smoke and he likes women, and he thinks that men's clubs are little short of relatively clean pigpens. Guess again."

"Well," said the fluffy haired blonde after a judicial pause, "there are only three causes that make a happy married woman sore on matrimony, if you will pardon the nomenclature. They are: dyed peacock, jealousy and lack of money. Is lack of money the canker that's eating the blushing from your damask cheek, or words to that effect?"

Mrs. Allison shook her head again, emphatically. "Nobody has enough money," she said with conviction. "But that's the least of my troubles, and I have as much money as is good for me, no doubt. Besides, a woman's no fool to let money worry her, if it's only a matter of luxuries."

The fluffy haired blonde nodded assent. "Right you are," she said. "And, what's more, there are fewer fools than people would believe when it comes to that. But whatever is the trouble, Celeste?"

Young Mrs. Allison sighed lugubrously. "What I object to in matrimony," she explained, jabbing her needle vigorously into the left wing of the blue insect, "is this sensation of permanence. Married people feel so disgustingly settled in life, and I loathe feeling settled."

Every one smiled.

"Well, times are changing," remarked the auburn haired matron, with a suggestion of scorn. "Do you notice married people feeling so dreadfully settled these days?"

"I mean decent people, of course," corrected young Mrs. Allison concisely. The sense of being hopelessly settled descends upon you when you come down to breakfast the first morning after your honeymoon trip is over, and it continues with you from that time on. When I go to the matinee, or to tea, or to the settlement, or anywhere like that, and see a lot of girls of just my own age, whom I went to school with, and who haven't married—old maids like you"—she indicated the fluffy haired blonde, who rose and bowed profoundly—"and see how positively juvenile and effervescent they look, and how delightfully unsettled they are in their attitude toward the world, I get pessimistic, that's all. I say to myself: 'Brace up, Celeste! You're a married woman, so hurry home or Fred will be there first, and will wonder what keeps you.'"

"I tell you," went on young Mrs. Allison, "you can just reverse what the old negro mammy said about spinsterhood and apply it to matrimony. 'Tee done hyar,' she said, 'as hit ain't so bad when yo' quit struggin'!'"

Everybody laughed and young Mrs. Allison joined in doubtfully.

"By the way, Celeste," remarked the fluffy haired blonde abruptly, "you always used to go south with the Merills to stay through January. You'll go this year, I suppose?"

EDITOR UNDERWOOD

Middlesboro Sends Golden Greetings To Hopkinsville.

Editor T. C. Underwood, of the New Era, who delivered the memorial address for the Middlesboro lodge of Elks a few weeks ago, has received an elegant gold-headed cane and the following letter:

Hon. T. C. Underwood,
Hopkinsville, Ky.

Dear Sir & Bro:

We are sending you today by express prepaid a small token of our appreciation of your services on Memorial Day.

At the last meeting of the Lodge after you were here, a resolution was unanimously adopted directing the Exalted Ruler to appoint a committee directing them to secure a nice present and send it to you, in token of the Lodge's appreciation of your services upon this occasion. The Committee has purchased a gold mounted cane and the same is being expressed to you.

We hope you will get some good service out of this cane and when you are called by the Grand Exalted Ruler of The Universe, hand this cane to your boy as a token of the high esteem in which you are held by the members of Middlesboro Lodge Number 1041 B. P. O. E.

Wishing you a merry Christmas and happy New Year, and hoping you will have occasion to visit us again soon, we remain,

Yours fraternally,
J. E. Evans,
Secy.

The new building on the West side of North Main street will be completed and occupied by them on a lease for the monument business. Mr. L. H. Davis, the head of the company settling, will retire. Indicted For Dam Horror.

Coudersport, Pa., Dec. 22.—The Potter county grand jury returned indictments against George C. Bayless, president, and Fred N. Hamlin, superintendent of the Bayless Pulp and Paper company of Austin, Pa., charging involuntary manslaughter because of the Austin dam disaster, Sept. 30 last.

Here's The Latest.

The New York police are searching for a thrifty couple who have been married at least seventy five times, each ceremony costing an unsuspecting clergyman $10. Every minister who smiled over them and bade them good fortune and success is the possessor of a $20 check, for which he gave $10 in change. The checks were bad.

Col. Walton's Job.

Col. W. P. Walton, the veteran newspaper man of Lexington, on his way home from Louisville told his friends that he had accepted the position of Kentucky Secretary of the National Citizens League. Col. Walton will have an office in Louisville and his salary will be something like $3,000 a year.

It is stated that there is no occasion for alarm over the condition of Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria.
